Community-Engaged Student Travel Grant, Summer 2019
Overview and Expectations

The Community-Engaged Student Travel Grant provides support to students participating in community-engagement projects and/or community-based research domestically or internationally. The goal of the program is to make engaged learning financially accessible for students across the university and to help ensure that engaged-learning participants more fully represent the diversity of Cornell. The grant program promotes high-quality engaged learning by facilitating pre-, during- and post-trip activities centered around critical reflection.

Activities and Expectations
Undergraduate Engaged Ambassadors and Office of Engagement Initiatives staff facilitate all grant support activities, which include:

Pre-engagement Workshop
Participants begin to examine their identities, biases and assumptions prior to departure, learn the “What? So What? Now What?” critical reflection framework and begin to build a shared community with other grantees.
